In the first year the curriculum requires registration of two compulsory core courses (Ideologies of the Balkans and Anthropology of the Balkans) worth 20 ECTS, two elective seminar courses adjusted to the study field worth 20 ECTS. The two compulsory core courses help students gain a thorough understanding of different theories, methods and concepts necessary for research in this field. They also contribute to the required critical distance towards different research procedures, methodologies and theories. Individual research work in the first year focuses mainly on preparing the doctoral thesis proposal. The completion of 40 ECTS in organised forms of study is required for progression to the second year of study.

In the second year, students choose an elective course worth 10 ECTS, providing for external electivity and international mobility. The rest of the second year programme is implemented in the form of individual research, intended for the preparation of the doctoral thesis and the authored academic article. The approval of the doctoral thesis topic by the Faculty of Social Sciences, which is processed during the second year of doctoral study, is required for enrolment in the third year of the doctoral programme.

The study process in the third year is implemented entirely in the form of individual research activity. The approval of the doctoral thesis topic by the University of Ljubljana, is required for enrolment in the fourth year of the doctoral programme.

The fourth year is devoted to individual research work and preparation of the doctoral thesis.
