Ideje in ambicije za poslovno kariero se med študentkami in študentii mednarodnih odnosov v njihovih zgodnjih načrtih med dodiplomskim študijem pojavljajo relativno redko. Dobro znanje tujih jezikov, razumevanje mednarodnega poslovnega okolja ter sposobnost zaznavanja sprememb in tveganj globalnega delovanja jih po diplomi pogosto vodijo v delo v mednarodnem poslovanju. Učenje na podlagi primerov eden ključnih pristopov ne le v mednarodnem poslovanju, temveč tudi v mednarodnih odnosih nasploh je navdahnilo povabilo našim partnerjem, da sodelujejo na naši okrogli mizi.

Naši nekdanji študenti se redno vračajo v učilnice v okviru seminarjev pri Politiki mednarodnega poslovanja prenašajo svoje bogato znanje in izkušnje. V zadnjih letih nam je uspelo ujeti nekaj njihovih uspešnih, poučnih in navdihujočih zgodb tudi v video primerih, ki smo jih izmenjali tudi z drugimi mednarodnimi programi po vsem svetu v okviru projekta Erasmus + digitalne knjižnice video primerov mednarodnega poslovanja (VCL4IB), imenovano »MNC Whispering«. Pogovor z gospodarstveniki je del mednarodne konference, na kateri praznujemo 60 let poučevanja in raziskovanja mednarodnih odnosov v Sloveniji.

Na okrogli mizi bomo razpravljali o najnovejših tveganjih in priložnostih v hitro spreminjajočem se mednarodnem poslovnem okolju po pandemiji Covid-19, pa tudi o tem, kako menedžerji – med njimi diplomantke in diplomanti mednarodnih odnosov v poplavi informacij prepoznajo dejstva potrebna za reševanje problemov. Delili bodo tudi svoje izkušnje o tem, kako se mednarodni menedžerji in njihove multinacionalke učijo in razvijajo znanje, kako ohranjajo in razvijajo talente, pa tudi svoja priporočila za učitelje in študente. Pridružite se nam!

Opportunities and Threats in Contemporary International Business

Date: Thursday, October 7th, 2021, 17:00 – 19:00

Venue: Faculty of Social Sciences, Grand Hall

Zoom link:

Ideas and ambitions for business careers appear relatively rarely among International Relations students in their early plans during undergraduate studies. However, their proficient knowledge of foreign languages, a good understanding of the international business (IB) environment as well as ability to recognize and address the changes and risks of global operation often lead them to work in international business after graduation.

Having acquired extensive knowledge and experience in IB practice, they often return to our lecture rooms, where they share their expertise with the new generations of students in IB classes. In recent years, we have captured some of their success stories (along with the lessons learned along the way) in video cases. These are shared internationally as part of the digital library of video cases on international business called MNC Whispering that has resulted from the Erasmus+ VCL4IB project. As case-based learning is one of the key teaching approaches in IB but also in other courses in our International Relations study programme, we will host our partners at a warming-up panel of the international conference celebrating 60 years of teaching and researching International Relations in Slovenia titled “Six Decades of the Past, Six Decades for the Future», where they will share their experience in IB.

The panelists will discuss the most recent risks and opportunities in the rapidly changing international business environment, such as those related to the Covid-19 pandemic and the rise of fake news. They will also share their experience of how MNEs and their managers learn and develop knowledge as well as how they attract, develop and retain talents. The discussion will also focus on the value of case-based learning for IB problem-solving. The guests will thereby offer recommendations for teachers and students wishing to pursue an IB career path in terms of knowledge and skill development.
